Culture 2.0 | Respect Yourself, Respect Your Culture program is a series of workshop incursions available to Primary and Secondary schools.

The Culture 2.0 Workshop Program enables Yirra Yaakin to engage with both the Aboriginal history, cultural and theatre studies curriculum requirements in schools, while offering unique performance creation opportunities & outcomes.

The workshops also provide an introduction to Aboriginal forms of storytelling and offer an Indigenous approach to devising theatre and performance. This includes sharing the space and who tells the story, in addition to incorporating movement, music and/or song into storytelling frameworks. The process is collaborative and inclusive where all are invited to speak and participate.

The Workshops

Across 3 x 1 hour sessions, students will explore a range of questions relating to culture and their experience of it - What does culture mean to you? What is culture? How does this affect you? Your family? Your community? What is the role of the past in defining the present?

In a collaborative framework students will then explore and develop performance outcomes from ideas initiated by these discussions.

The workshops are based on the understanding that we can all learn from each other and together we can create a more tolerant and supportive community.

All activities are designed to provoke respect, trust, positive cooperation, collaborations, teamwork, and harmonious interaction with the environment and other peoples.

Outcomes

This workshop program has previously generated wide-ranging discussions on rituals, refugees, subcultures, responsibilities, segregation, food, art, racial differences and similarities, and how we share cultural experiences with people from around the world. Devised performance outcomes have included dance, song, poetry and theatre presentations.
